

ABSTRACT

A photography tent is constructed of panels of light weight, color corrected translucent nylon fabric, supported by a flexible frame. The frame allows the tent to be collapsed to a substantially flat condition. The translucent material allows an external light source to be used.